David Ingalls, a member of the First Yale Unit, flew a Sopwith with the British Royal Air Force, and was the first U.S. naval aviator to become an ace.

Yale undergraduates had 'sand' to form Navy's first aviation unit

By RICHARD ALEXANDER

The Navy's origins in aviation can be traced to a group of idealistic, heroic and patriotic Ivy League young men at Yale University just before World War I.

So was the message of author Marc Wortman, 51, who was the second lecturer in the Naval Historical Center's Eight Bell Lecture Series at the Naval War College Museum last Monday.

Wortman spoke about his book, The Millionaires' Unit: The Aristocratic Flyboys Who Fought the Great War and Invented American Air Power. It was compiled from letters and diaries of wartime.

Wortman said Navy air power can be traced to Yale sophomore Trubee Davison, son of the chairman of J. P. Morgan. In 1915 he organized the Yale Aero Club with about a dozen buddies, which led to the authorized reserve aviator squadron. Just before the U.S. entered World War I in 1917, the young men all enlisted in the Navy Reserve Flying Corp., and went off to Florida to train in flying boats.

"Flying gave them a great sense of freedom and exhilaration," Wortman said. "The Yale student body was all white, male and mostly Protestant. Their lives of privilege were constricted and channeled, starting with prep school education and, like their fathers and grandfather before them,

Ongoing war in Iraq no cause for divorce

We military folks are supposed to be getting divorced in droves. We're not. We may be fighting about how often we're apart and about what a jerk he is when he gets home and about how she spends all their money. But we aren't getting divorced at nearly the rate that is expected.

A couple of weeks ago the RAND Corporation released the results of its year-long "Families Under Stress" study. Instead of a soaring divorce rate, they found that the rate of divorce among military families has increased only slightly. The divorce rate rose from 2.5 percent in 2001 to about 3 percent in 2005.

Which means my line of military-themed "Sorry About Your Divorce" cards is probably going to tank. Good by me.

What isn't good by me is the less publicized rate of divorce among military women. In the Army, women are having a harder time keeping their marriages together. The divorce rate for women in the Army in 2006 was 7.9 percent —three times as high as the rate for men. In fact, it is the highest rate of divorce for uniformed women since before 2000.

Why is that? No one has any real data to back up that kind of difference. Even the experts just shrug their shoulders and say that they can't really explain it. I don't know anyone who can.

Oh, everyone can come up with stories about this Sailor or that Marine and how and why that particular couple got divorced. But, I don't see any screaming difference between men in uniform getting divorced and women in uniform getting divorced, do you? The same money troubles and lack of communication and adultery and addiction affect couples everywhere.

So why are the husbands of female soldiers more likely to bail?

My women's studies professor in college could have spent a whole semester on that question. She would have had a line of thought about how subservient women are and how they don't have as many options as men and how they are tied to their marriages by the bonds of children.

She would have been able to talk your ear off about how women don't earn as much as men and how men cannot multitask well enough to handle a deployed household.

Rear Adm. Thomas Eccles, Commander, Naval Undersea Warfare Center, talks with guests after the Newport Council of the Navy League's 50th annual dinner last week at the Hyatt Regency in Newport. Eccles was the guest speaker.

Math, science skills seen essential for future Navy

By R. K. ALEXANDER

Navalog editor

The Commander, Naval Undersea Warfare Center (NUWC), asked Newport Council Navy League to encourage their children and grandchildren to "work the hard work" in high school math and sciences to keep the future Navy equipped with the latest in war-fighting technology.

Rear Adm. Thomas Eccles, also deputy commander for Undersea Warfare and Undersea Technology, Naval Sea Systems Command, was the guest speaker last week at the Newport Council Navy League's 50th annual dinner at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. Almost 200 attended.

"I ask for your continued support in the development of young people...to share your knowledge and influence with our next workforce, so they will take on the challenge."

Using a page from naval history, Eccles told how Adm. Chester Nimitz inspired the shipyard at Pearl Harbor to repair the damaged carrier USS Yorktown (Battle of the Coral Sea) in three days instead of 30 so she could be redeployed for the Battle of Midway in World War II.

"We need people like Nimitz of the 20th century to inspire leadership and response in our young people today," he said.

Eccles also mentioned the challenges of building a submarine fleet with tight budget constraints. The USS Hawaii (SSN 776), the third in the Virginia Class, was commissioned May 5 at U.S. Submarine Base Groton, New London, Conn. Ten boats are under contract, with seven to

NAVSTA helps at city fire

The Naval Station (NAVSTA) Newport Fire Department joined several area fire departments in responding early Wednesday morning to a general alarm fire that gutted a three-story commercial building at 132 Thames St.

The fire destroyed the House of Scrimshaw gift shop, and caused smoke damage to surrounding buildings, in the heart of Newport's shopping and tourist district.

Newport firefighters were assisted by Middletown, Portsmouth, Warren, Bristol and Navy firefighters and apparatus at the scene, and provided backup at local fire stations. The Navy responds under terms of mutual aid support.

Assistant Fire Chief Dodd Schock said NAVSTA was called Wednesday at 2:34 a.m. to cover the Newport Fire Department Headquarters at 21 West Marlborough St. While there, NAVSTA Fire and Rescue responded to a medical emergency call in Newport.

But about 10 minutes later, NAVSTA aerial ladder apparatus was called in to assist at the fire scene. NAVSTA responded with 11 firefighters and equipment, he said. The Navy ladder apparatus pumped water into the upper floors, and deployed several hand lines, Schock said.

Navy nurses to mark 99th

The U.S. Navy Nurse Corps will celebrate its 99th anniversary and honor the naval officers whose expertise is professional nursing on Sunday, May 13. The celebration coincides with National Nurses Week, May 5-11.

Capt. Patricia J. Goodin, Nurse Corps, Commanding Officer of Naval Health Clinic New England, will lead a cake-cutting ceremony today at 11 a.m. at the NHCNE medical facility.

All hands are welcome to celebrate the anniversary.

City to honor Sailors for reservoir sandbagging help

By GREG KOHLWEISS
NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

The city of Newport will formally recognize the contributions by Naval Station Newport

Sailors who helped sandbag the earthen dam around the city's reservoir that was damaged in the April nor'easter.

City Clerk Kathy Silvia has scheduled the city Council resolution for May 23 at 6:30 p.m. in City Council chambers.

Chief Builder Mike Zangli, the leading CPO from Self Help/Port Operations, and Supply at NAVSTA, answered the call, and trucked several pallets of sandbags to the reservoir South Easton's Pond.

The following Navy personnel will be honored:

Port Operations — BM1

Matthew S. Ventura, BM2 Michael R. Kidd, and BM3 Jose A. Ocampoospina; Ney Hall Galley — CS2 Jason M. Oliver

Fleet and Family Support Center

Help for new military spouses

EDITOR'S NOTE: Some of the Fleet and Family Support Center workshops and meetings require registration. Please call 841-2283 for information.

Fleet and Family Support Center has a program for new spouses, explaining the military lifestyle, benefits and services available to them, and tools to assist them in maintaining a state of preparation for deployment or other military-related separation.

Spouse Orientation to Military Life is offered for all new spouses or those spouses who have never lived near a military installation before and is scheduled for Tuesday, May 15, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center.

Self Esteem — This workshop is scheduled for May 17, 2 to 3:30 p.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center, and will provide participants with an overview of the importance of high self esteem and its impact on all areas of functioning and personal growth.

Navy Family OMBUDSMAN Basic Training — The Navy Family Ombudsman is a critical communication link between the Commanding Officer and family members.

This workshop, scheduled for May 21 to 23, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center, provides the basic knowledge and tools necessary to be an effective representative of the command and an advocate for family members.

Homebuyers' Workshop — Purchasing a home is a complex task. There are many questions that need to have answered before you take that big step.

Come to the Fleet and Family Support Center on Wednesday, May 30, from 6 to 8 p.m., and learn about your options and how to decipher real estate lingo.

You will meet with a representative from the Navy Federal Credit Union to hear firsthand about qualifications for mortgages and other financial options.

Home-buying information for all areas of the United States is available at this workshop. Registration is required.

Assertiveness in the Workplace — Come to the "Assertiveness in the Workplace" presentation at the Fleet and Family Support Center on Thursday, May 31, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. This presentation de-bunks commonly-held myths regarding "assertiveness."

You will learn skills to help you take better care of yourself whether interacting with peers, supervisors, employees, friends, acquaintances or strangers.

You also will learn how and when to use these skills. This session will include techniques to help you be more effective and confident in dealing with a variety of individuals.

Energy tip

Consider installing solid state dimmer switches and dimming the lights when less light is needed. Dimming reduces energy consumption. But don't use them with most compact fluorescents, which are not compatible.

Military joins long blue line

By RICHARD ALEXANDER
Navalog editor

MIDDLETOWN — A small representation from the Navy and Marine Corps participated in the 24th annual National Aquidneck Island Police Parade last Sunday from Middletown to Newport.

The Naval Staff College at the Naval War College supplied four U.S. and international officers to judge marching units.

The parade, which celebrates National Police Week, May 6 to 12, stepped off at noon on West Main Road at Beacon Street, headed down West Main to Broadway in Newport, passed the reviewing stand across from the Newport Police Station, and finished at Washington Square.

The judges critiqued marching units in several categories, including police marching — precision, drill and ceremony;

police honor guard; and police drill team.

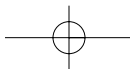

Navy Newport was represented by Navy Band Northeast's marching band, the Department of Defense uniformed patrol division, and the NAVSTA fire department pumper. The popular Marine Silent Drill Platoon of Washington D.C. was in the last division.

The parade, as well as others across the country, pays tribute to the men and women who died in the line of duty in 2006, as well as those who currently serve and protect their communities.

Marching units and vehicles from across the Ocean State and Massachusetts, as far south as Florida and as far north at Maine were expected. Mixed in were numerous high school bands, bagpipe bands, and drum and bugle corps units.

Salon Nuvo

Hi, I'm Mitsi Dupre
and I am thrilled to join the team at Salon Nuvo. I started my career as an accessories designer in New York City. While I was living in the city, I met a friend who did hair for Toni&Guy, and I immediately realized my destiny. I moved to Rhode Island 3 years ago, and when Toni&Guy Hairdressing Academy opened, I couldn't get there fast enough.

I love what I do every day, and am passionate about hair, fashion and relating them to suit my clients' needs. It is truly a feeling like no other when you love what you do.

I believe in education to keep up with current trends and new techniques, and I'm constantly challenging myself at the art of hair.

Navy-wide news

Naval Special Warfare eligible for new bonus

SAN DIEGO (NNS) — Unrestricted line officers and limited duty officers (LDO) of the Naval Special Warfare (NSW) community are eligible to receive a bonus effective May 1, according to NAVADMIN 97/07.

The Critical Skills Retention Bonus (CSRB) is offered for the first time as an incentive to retain mid-grade officers, O4 – O6, who are undermanned within NSW.

According to the NSW officer community manager, the nation's demand for NSW officers has grown by 69 percent over the past five years. This new bonus is designed by NSW officers to meet increasing demands and to keep skilled leadership within the Sea, Air, Land (SEAL) force after 20 years.

"I know a lot of guys who are impacted by this bonus," said SEAL Cmdr. Jeffrey Drinkard, future operations manager at NSW command. "I strongly believe if guys were on the fence on whether to stay or not, especially at the 20-year mark, they will choose to stay at least another three years."

To qualify for the bonus, NSW unrestricted line officers must have between 15 to 25 years of active-duty commissioned service and NSW LDOs must have between 10 to 20 years of active-duty commissioned service and must agree to remain on active-duty service within NSW for three to five years.

Officers who select a three-year extension will receive a bonus of $15,000 per year, while a five-year contract offers $25,000 per year.

"These incentive pays should go a long way to retain the guys that we have today and provide incentive for the guys tomorrow to come in and fill those leadership jobs," said Lt. Dave Silverman, assistant officer community manager at the NSW Detachment in Washington.

The latest bonus comes along with many others offered to SEAL officers and enlisted. For example, officers with six to 14 years of service qualify for a special warfare officer continuation bonus of up to $15,000 a year for serving an extra five years.

Enlisted SEALs are eligible for a selective reenlistment bonus that allows up to $75,000 and for those SEAL enlisted and warrant officers with 19 to 25 years of service, a critical skills retention bonus of up to $150,000 is available. This is in addition to extra incentives such as dive pay, jump pay, and demolition pay that are earned monthly by qualified SEALs.

Silverman said the incentive pays given to NSW officers are on par with or better than any other specific organization within the Navy.

For more information about the CSRB or other special pays for SEALs and special warfare combatant-craft crew personnel, see a Navy career counselor.

Submarine USS Hawaii commissioned in Groton

WASHINGTON (NNS) — The Navy's newest attack submarine Hawaii was commissioned last Saturday in Groton, Conn. The third submarine of the Virginia class, SSN 776, bears the name Hawaii to recognize the tremendous support the Navy has enjoyed from the people of the Aloha State and in honor of the rich heritage of submarines in the Pacific theater.

Adm. Gary Roughead, Commander, U.S. Pacific Fleet, delivered the ceremony's principal address. Hawaii Gov. Linda Lingle is the sponsor of Hawaii, the state's namesake submarine. The ceremony was highlighted by a time-honored Navy tradition when Lingle gave the first order to "man our ship and bring her to life!"

Hawaii has improved stealth, sophisticated surveillance capabilities and special warfare enhancements that will enable it to meet the Navy's multi-mission requirements. Hawaii's capabilities include anti-submarine and anti-surface warfare, special operations forces delivery and support, and covert mine warfare. In addition to these mission areas, Hawaii will be able to strike targets ashore with precision Tomahawk cruise missiles and conduct covert long-term surveillance of land areas, littoral waters or other maritime forces. With enhanced communications connectivity, the submarine also will provide unique, fully-integrated strike group and joint task force support.

"The addition of USS Hawaii to the fleet provides needed capability to meet the challenges of the future," said Navy Secretary Donald C. Winter. "This ship's stealth, endurance, flexibility, and lethality, combined with a highly trained and ready crew, make for the most robust undersea warfare capability in the world."

Capt. David A. Solms, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo., is the ship's commanding officer and will lead a crew of approximately 134 officers and enlisted personnel.

be built between 2009 and 2013, he said. The Navy hopes to save 20 percent in shipbuilding costs by building two boats per year.

“We have an expression, ‘2 for 4 in 12,’ ” he said, which means, “Two submarines at $4 billion each, in 2005 fiscal dollars, and authorized for construction in 2012.”

The dinner closed with an award ceremony for Edward “Ned” F. McGrath for his 50 years service to the Navy League. McGrath was a “founding father” of the league in 1957 and subsequently served three terms as Newport Council president.

Awards were presented by Newport Council Navy League President Roy Callahan and Don Ten Eyck, president, New England Region Navy League.

enrollment in Yale. It was all part of their grooming to become leaders of business and industry.

“But when they got up in the air, they were alone and truly on their own for the first time.”

Wortman said a Yale man of character was said to have “sand,” which today would be defined as “moxie” or the “right stuff.” What mattered on the Connecticut campus were extra-curricular activities, such as crew racing, football, or secret fraternal societies.

With war on the horizon, Davison suggested that flying warplanes in Europe was the club's responsibility and the members should be in the front lines.

By 1917 the 28 men in the First

Yale Unit qualified for their aviation wings and were sent to Europe as the first aerial coastal patrol unit. They were stationed along the English Channel at Dunkirk, or the French or Irish coasts. They monitored u-boat traffic to protect merchant shipping and troopship convoys.

“But the young men really wanted to be fighter pilots, and fly the famous Sopwith Camel later characterized in the cartoon, Snoopy and Red Baron,” Wortman said. The biplane was the main fighter aircraft of the Royal Air Force of Great Britain.

Wortman said flying the wood and canvas aircraft with their open cockpits was very dangerous, and the life expectancy of a pilot was about three weeks.

But most of the collegiate men made it through the war, and Yale hockey player David Sinton Ingalls became the only U.S. air ace. After the war the men became leaders in aviation, both military and business.

The First Yale Unit produced an assistant secretary of war, an undersecretary of the Navy, and a secretary of defense. Ingalls became an assistant secretary of the Navy, Davison became the director of the Civil Aeronautics Board and secretary of war for air, Robert Lovett and Artemus Gates became commandants of the Army and Navy air corps, Juan Trippe founded Pan American Airlines, and Frederick W. Smith went on to found Federal Express.

She might have even come up with a grudging line or two about how there is more societal support for women to wait for their soldier than for a man to wait for his.

I would have listened to that and written it down and vomited it back up on a test. But in the secret recesses of my brain, I wouldn't have believed it for a minute. Because I see a whole lot of military wives who have joined “the we're-not-getting-divorced-over-this-challenge” club.

Yeah, our servicemen are going to fight this war. Yeah, they are going to be away all the time. But by God, we're not getting divorced over this war in Iraq.

That doesn't mean we never complain. It doesn't mean we are shaking our pom poms and dressing in red, white, and blue every day. It's just that we share in this common fierceness that we will not be torn apart by this thing outside ourselves. You don't have to have a pair of XX chromosomes to adopt that idea.

You just have to do it. And do it now. It sure seems to be working for a whole lot of tough military families.
